Sermon Notes

Those Who Cannot - 2 Samuel 12:1-23 - Series: Last Things - #5

1. _____ is believing in what is yet unseen – and still to come - but believing it to be such a reality, that you adjust your life around it.
2. What becomes of those like the unborn, the infant, the young child, or even the mentally challenged, who pass away without having the capacity to understand the gospel and believe?
3. Psalm 139:13-16 reveals that ...
 - Life begins at _____.
 - God created David's inmost being – his _____ or _____.
 - All of _____ is laid out before God and nothing hidden from His sight.
4. God granted David a faith to _____ in Him even from his first breath. (Psalm 22:9-10)
5. John the Baptist was filled with the Holy Spirit while still in the _____. (Luke 1:11-15)
6. It appears that God has granted, to at least some, a _____ faith before they are even born into this world. This is not how we see God generally working in people's lives though.
7. The Age of _____ – Until a child is able to choose right from wrong, God does not hold their sin against them. By His grace, the sufficiency of Christ's atonement, is applied to them.
8. "... if a person lacks the natural capacity to see the revelation of God's will or God's glory then that person's sin would not _____ - God would not bring the person into final judgment for not believing what he had no natural capacity to see." (John Piper)
9. David understood that his son, having died, would not be _____ to him. This is the sorrow and heartache of death.
10. David believed that at his death he would be _____ with his son – not meaning the grave – but that at his death he would find his son in _____, in the presence of God.
11. The understanding, that those who die having never been _____ of recognizing God's glory in creation, or choosing right from wrong, are ushered into God's presence at their death, brings comfort to those grieving such loss.
12. We can _____, that those who have received salvation by God's grace through faith in Jesus, can expect to be reunited with the little ones who have gone on before us.
